At APS Ltd. we are committed to marketing products that add value to by-products and feature environmentally responsible characteristics. Dragon® Peiskubben firelogs are good for the environment inside and out because they utilize waste resources responsibly in the manufacture of convenient, clean burning fireplace products.

Dragon® Peiskubben firelogs and wood fire lighting products are made with biomass materials such as sawdust produced by milling operations that was previously burned or hauled to landfills, and petroleum wax as a combustible binder.

When burned properly, Dragon® Peiskubben firelogs ignite quickly and burn completely. The wax component of a Dragon® Peiskubben firelog completely engulfs the wood portion (sawdust) of the log in flame, resulting in more complete combustion - with very little emission or smoke.

Reducing emissions from fireplaces is a priority in many communities throughout Scandinavia and Europe. Local air quality agencies, as well as the EU Environmental Protection Agency, are advocating that people reduce the amount of smoke that comes from their fireplaces in an effort to improve air quality during the winter months.

The use of manufactured wax/sawdust firelogs, in place of cordwood, offers a credible approach to mitigating air emissions from fireplaces. A number of studies have demonstrated that wax/sawdust firelogs significantly reduce the emissions of particles and carbon monoxide.

Dragon® Peiskubben firelogs burns for approx. 2,5 hours, gives out approx. 4000 kcal. of energy, weighs 1,1 kg. and is produced in Norway. Several tests have shown that Dragon® Peiskubben firelogs are the most environmentally friendly and user friendly firelogs on the European market today.
